Pianistic Career

Born in Florida, Uruguay, Ramiro Schiavoni has established an intense and prolific professional career spanning over thirty-five years within the musical and artistic ecosystem. His profound interpretative strength and technical rigor have earned him prestigious national accolades, most notably the Plaqueta Virgen del Pintado and Clave de la Cultura awards, presented in recognition of his sustained contribution to the country's cultural development.

Institutionally, he played a fundamental role within Sodre: as a pianist for the National Dance School within the Classical Ballet division, and as a répétiteur pianist for the National School of Lyrical Art under the direction of Maestra Raquel Pierotti. This academic background was complemented by his role as a pianist for the Ballet Nacional Sodre under the artistic direction of Maestro Julio Bocca, collaborating closely with leading global figures of contemporary dance, including the prime Uruguayan ballerina MarÃ a Noel Riccetto.

Concurrently, he has maintained an intense and steady collaboration with solo singers and choral ensembles throughout Uruguay, driving the decentralization of lyrical and academic music. With an extensive presence on digital distribution platforms, his commercial discography exceeds 70 released titles with a continuous reach into international markets. Furthermore, his methodological expertise has regularly positioned him as a jury member for the National Piano Competition of Uruguay and in Artistic Direction roles for major national festivals.

Compositional Work & Vanguard

As a creator, his compositional catalog is distinguished by a sophisticated technical language, gathering forty-seven original works for solo piano and eight chamber pieces for voice and piano.

Schiavoni stands at the forefront of contemporary musical literature with the creation of his original opera Mi Mejor Recuerdo, the first work of its genre structurally conceived exclusively for a single mezzo-soprano and a single pianist, both performing as soloists, which premiered successfully on stages across Uruguay and Costa Rica. His compositions and interpretations of urban tango music have received the institutional endorsement of the Academia del Tango del Uruguay, which described his rendition of La Cumparsita as the definitive solo piano version.

Concurrently, his refinement in academic composition was recognized internationally with two First Prizes at the prestigious German and Mercosur composers competition La otra modernidad, held in the cities of Montevideo and Stuttgart. His intellectual rigor has likewise led him to serve on the jury panels for the National Music Awards of the Ministry of Education and Culture.

Record Production & Literature

His activity as an independent manager, publisher, and music producer serves as a critical link for the preservation and dissemination of the work of local artists and lyrical singers. Schiavoni is the intellectual designer and director of two independent record labels: Colección Ballet Emocional and EDM Complot.

On the publishing front, he founded the imprint Ramiro Schiavoni Publicaciones, a firm specializing in high-quality sheet music and advanced pedagogical material, through which he develops physical books and next-generation interactive PDF editions. In tune with modern distribution platforms, he leads the technologically vanguard project Glowing Piano, a social media streaming space centered on musical performance under a carefully curated, sophisticated aesthetic of reactive lighting.

In his role as a content creator, he spearheads the audiovisual and photographic direction of his own aesthetic projects. Within the literary field, he complements his creative sensibility through the publication of four printed books of his authorship, encompassing existentialist poetry with over three hundred compiled poems and personal short stories capturing everyday narratives, while also collaborating with the emblematic cultural magazine Sinfónica in Uruguay and Letras de Parnaso in Spain.

Electronic Exploration & Underground Sound

Guided by a disruptive spirit, Schiavoni expanded the boundaries of his creative universe into avant-garde electronic music. Technically trained as a DJ alongside the most influential selectors of the Uruguayan underground techno scene, he translated the structures of classical music into the sequenced production of dark, complex, yet profoundly musical textures.

Under his record label EDM Complot, he has created more than fifty independent tracks entirely removed from conventional commercial circuits. His sessions are structured through progressive sets of high aesthetic craftsmanship. This disruptive approach has captured the attention of the specialized scene, leading to his original tracks being mixed with resounding success on the dance floors by key figures of the regional clubbing culture.

Tertiary Studies

Parallel to his artistic career, he completed degrees in Communication Sciences at the University of the Republic, having finished two postgraduate specializations: Artistic and Recreational Communication, and Institutional Relations and Advertising.
